Theology as Conversation - Daniel L. Migliore - 2009-05-04

This unique book invites readers into "conversations" on religion, theology, and social movements. The essays, an internationally respected gathering, offer a variety of articles that not only contribute to creative thinking past long-standing impedances, moving conversation forward, but that also create conditions needed to inspire new conversations. Some cases do not document historically inspired debates that helped shape the theological reflection of the time in which each occurred. Some imagined a dialogue that had never taken place, or that had already ended. Others, such as the one between Bonhoeffer and South Africa.

Watching TV Religiously (Engaging Culture) - Kitty Callaway - 2016-11-15

Helping Christians Understand the Power and Meaning of TV Since its inception, television has captured the attention of the secular world. In this first book, John W. de Gruchy points out the relevance of Dietrich Bonhoeffer's thought for the life of the church in South Africa, engaging in dialogue the theology of Bonhoeffer and the theology of South Africa. Both Bonhoeffer's theology and his life witness to the need for Christians to come face to face with the pressing political and social issues of the day. Bonhoeffer believed that to bear an authentic witness to Christ in

Confucianism and Christianity - Edmund Kee-Fook Chia - 2020-11-30
This book is intended to encourage the use of comparative theology in contemporary Buddhist-Christian dialogue as a new approach that would truly respect each religious tradition’s uniqueness and make dialogue beneficial for all. It will therefore be of interest to scholars in theological and intercultural studies.

Anamnesis as Dangerous Memory - Edmund Kee-Fook Chia - 2020-11-30
In this book, Edmund Kee-Fook Chia engages directly with core primary texts and treats individual theologians in greater depth and nuance than most other recent works. He argues that Anamnesis as Dangerous Memory offers one answer to the question of how to do Christian theology in an academic and interreligious context.

This book is a printed edition of the Special Issue "Transforming Encounters and Critical Reflection: African Thought, Critical Theory, and Liberation Theology in Dialogue" that was published in Religions 2017, 8, 119.

Dialogue with the Other: David Tracy - 1990
Dialogue with the Other expresses David Tracy’s ongoing interest in the other and The Other. His reflections enter dialogue with figures as diverse as, but not limited to, Miroslav Volf and John Roberto Rylko on the basis of the Christian worldview and the tradition of interreligious dialogue.

Stepping Stones To Other Religions: A Christian Theology of Inter-religious Dialogue - Dermot Lane - 2019-04-09
This book is ideally suited to lecturers and students of both Christian studies and Confucian studies, as well as those engaged in mission studies and interfaith studies. It will also be a valuable resource for anyone interested in comparative religious and theological studies on Christianity and Confucianism.

The Problem with Interreligious Dialogue - Muthujaw Swamy - 2016-03-24
Muthujaw Swamy provides a fresh perspective on the world religions paradigm and ‘interreligious dialogue’. By clarifying the assumption that underpins the paradigm, the author shows that the essential conditions for such dialogue are not met. This leaves the theory of interreligious dialogue in serious trouble, but it also provides opportunities for fresh thinking about the nature and role of dialogue.

God Is Satan - Matt Tomlinson - 2023-03-21
Christian theologians in the Pacific Islands see culture as the grounds on which one understands God. In this pathbreaking book, Matt Tomlinson engages in an anthropological conversation with the work of "contestational theologians" examining a variety of cultures with a particular emphasis on theologies of dialogue and interreligion.

Emphasizing its historical, methodological and constructive dimensions, Religion and Science takes the pulse of contemporary research as the interdisciplinary study of science and religion gains momentum.

Science and Religion - Yves Gingras - 2017-06-16
Today science and religion are seen as separate and distinct phenomena: science is a modern discipline while religion is an ancient one. This characteristic makes traditional theologies of religion quite unsuitable for addressing the science and religion questions which have come to the fore in the last decades of the twentieth century.

In our pluralistic world, it’s not sufficient to simply learn about other religions: we must learn from them. World Religions in Dialogue: A Comparative Theological Approach, Enhanced Edition, provides an opportunity to do just that.

A Glass Darkly - David Garrett Jones - 2010
This book is a sequel to the first volume in the Interreligious Studies in Applied Ethics and includes essays from some of the leading contributors. Like the previous volume, the book explores the interface between medicine and theology. The essays demonstrate the complementarity evident between the two and examine how those coming from different theological traditions are able to provide helpful insights. Points of disagreement, and their crucial role in contributing to an understanding of the complexities of the debate, are acknowledged. Much of the discussion focuses on the role of the bioethicist and of the theologian in the medical field.

Sharing Light on the Way to God - Pim Valkenberg - 2006
This book seeks to give form to the theology that hysteres two traditions that have not only been in constant conflict during most of their historical encounters but are also presented as opposite blocks in the threatened "clash of civilizations" at the beginning of the third millennium. Islam and Christianity. Based on experiences of dialogue between the three Abrahamic faiths, this book analyses historical and contemporary processes of interreligious dialogue between Christians and Muslims in order to arrive at a concept of dialogue as 'mutual encounter'.

Christian Theology and Inter-religious Dialogue - Maurice Wiles - 1992

"That Professor Wiles has now turned from the field of Christian doctrine and its history, for which he is so well known, to that of inter-faith dialogue is an indication of the importance which that subject is now assuming. This is not a book, he confesses, which he had expected to write, but in recent years, he has increasingly felt that the close co-existence of different faith communities in the modern world is as important a background to Christian theology as the rise of the scientific world-view." In his book, which arises out of lectures at Manchester and Yale universities, Professor Wiles begins by asking whether acceptance of the possibility of open dialogue with other religions is not a desertion of the way in which church has understood its faith down the ages. He then goes on to argue that pressure to acknowledge other religions is only one of several pressures arising out of changes in contemporary knowledge and experience of the world which Christians face today. A third chapter examines how Karl Rahner tried to incorporate these changes into a coherent theological position, and the last chapter builds on this approach and offers a personal account of a Christian theology for dialogue. "At a time of increasing convergence and opposition to interfaith activity in the churches, here is encouragement to those who believe that narrow christocentrism is not the way forward." -BOOK JACKET.Title Summary field provided by Blackwell North America, Inc. Catholics in Interreligious Dialogue - Anthony O'Mahony - 2006

This volume brings together a wide-ranging and engaging series of studies that witness to the depth of theological reflection that the contemporary Christian monastic and scholarly community are engaged in as the religious traditions seek to understand and relate to each other in a global context. (Catholic)

Theological Foundations for Environmental Ethics - Jame Schaefer - 2009-05-07

Earth is imperiled. Human activities are adversely affecting the land, water, air, and myriad forms of biological life that comprise the ecosystems of our planet. Indicators of global warming and holes in the ozone layer inhibit functions vital to the biosphere. Environmental damage to the planet becomes damaging to human health and well-being now and into the future—and too often that damage affects those who are least able to protect themselves. Can religion make a positive contribution to preventing further destruction of biological diversity and ecosystems and threats to our earth? Jame Schaefer thinks that it can, and she examines the thought of Christian Church fathers and medieval theologians to reveal and retrieve insights that may speak to our current plight. By reconstrcuting the teachings of Augustine, Thomas Aquinas, and other classic thinkers to reflect our current scientific understanding of the world, Schaefer shows how to "green" the Catholic faith: to value the goodness of creation, to appreciate the beauty of creation, to respect creation's praise for God, to acknowledge the kinship of all creatures, to use creation with gratitude and restraint, and to live virtuously within the earth community.
